

[Poem by Jonas Deroueché]

How extravagant my shadow,
In october five times my height
Hence my silhouette's grandeur,
A reflection of lost glory

Splendid seed sowed in spring,
In november harvested wine of sorrow
The sap contaminated lifeblood forever,
Bliss my souls' inmost growth