

Homegrown (5:32)
Copyright Neil Miller

Do you remember your little angel
When the chat was in her eyes
Do you remember your little angel
Before the needle and the lies .. mmmm, yeah

Does she remember her first heartaches
And the taste of bittersweet
She turns and cowers to the voices in her mind
Sounds to far, too far to reach

She was a noble heart, she was a noble heart
She's a child with her head in a cloud
She's got, nothin' but tears in her eyes
She's got sad eyes
She won't come down, cause she knows the way
Child with her head in a cloud
She's got, nothin' but tears in her eyes
She's got sad eyes
She won't come down, cause she knows the way

Did you ever get to see her face again
Because you wouldn't accept, that she's homegrown
Will you ask her world outside to take your blame
Need of the child that you called your own

She was a noble heart, she was a noble heart
She's a child with her head in a cloud
She's got, nothin' but tears in her eyes
She's got sad eyes
She won't come down, cause she knows the way

Child with her head in a cloud
She's got nothin' but tears in her eyes
She's got sad eyes
She won't come down, cause she knows the way

Do you remember little sister
Do you accept, that shes homegrown
Do you remember little sister
The child that you left out in the cold

She's in your heart
She's in your heart