

Midnight, stop light, happens everytime
Pretty girl in a car
No resemblance what so ever
I wonder how you are
Constant question pounding in my brain
Is anybody loving you these days

Lonesome pillow, sun come yellow
I reach across the bed
Should be hurried, workin', worries
I lie there instead
With the thought that's drivin me insane
Is anybody loving you these days

Damn this small town, every place that I go
I drive By your house, see his car and I know
He's there with you, but when he kisses you
Think about the memories we made, and tell me
Is anybody loving you these days

Second chances, backward glances
Most people just say no
World keeps turnin, heart keeps yearnin
I keep holdin the hope
One day you might answer with my name
Is anybody loving you these days

Damn the small town, every place that I go
I drive By your house, see his car and I know
He's there with you, but when he kisses you
Think about the memories we made, and tell me
Is anybody loving you, I mean really loving you
Is anybody loving you these days
