don't you settle when you should move the edges around wide awake you can't get up, overwhelmed and if this is all you say there is then iv'e had enough i want to taste the razor kiss I want to see too much lost what you learned along the way it's all behind you now all that you'd just as soon forget always finds you somehow alone on a ship that won't sail on a sea of regret another storm out in the distance another day

it's all been a crazy dream endless falls and whispered screams nothing is what it seems never is never was now the years go by like days hours carve lines in your face someone new to take your place never is never was lost what you learned along the way: it's all been a crazy dream
