

another day
waking up to find myself in the same way feeling homeless, and helpless, this world's heartless

take some time and watch these problems drift away i'm here to say

who are you to put me in this situation? what can you do that's going to help me now? when did you learn to care about no one?
where can i go tonight?
and that's why...

what you do is going to echo in our lives don't take what they say and let it lead to your own demise because soon you're going to find out yourself out on your own (on my own) don't let them make you believe you're just another tragedy fame and too little trust, no common sense will be the death of you departed, it's over before it's started i needed a little help and that was plain to see you never melt with me