

Artist: oblivion

Title: The day the calvary got gum cancer

download from: <http://www.lyricsdisc.com>

Do you remember, men?
We had some fun going way back when.
Living out a lie to impress your friends
And to take up space.
And though your mind is an ugly place,
It's all wrapped up in a happy face,
Like the shine of a casket case, but it's dead inside.
And I've been burned some many times,
That I don't care if it is a crime,
I know people only get what they deserve.
And your words fill with deceit,
But I will not concede defeat,
Just add your name to the list of people on my nerves.
Calling it a day, you can't do it any other way.
Can't you apply all that you've learned?
And now you're going far,
With this and that and blah, blah, blah, blah, blah.
Do you think that I'm concerned?
Do you remember when we got along,
Before I had to write this song,
Crying out your eyes, "Where did we go wrong?"
Who really care?
You found something that you thought was really there.
It's over man. It never happened.