Title: The revelation

Impossible-Why impossible?

I have to cross the gap, to get to the other side as a spectator, the chrysalis forms and I become a participant in my own life I have dreamed of it too often, I have hoped for it too much to wait for it waiting for my life to catch up with me for me to get bogged down in my everyday life that I can look back without regret it is time for me to move to the other side of the mirror to incarnate the relection I wish to be

From childhood to awareness an awareness without being a man with no responsibility as yet but so many things to do I spend my youth forging my will testing myself using my days to build my dreams From daydream during hard times that I can not evade how many times must I suffer so many failures, so many hard punches how many times bowing to others I am despite myself the only one to understand the real me because my past belongs to me and refuse to be divided night falls and I still wonder if all my sacrifices will be rewarded So much pain for a brief moment of happiness let's hope
