

Remember the nights
We looked for new words
When we woke up
We chose our world
A walk in cold streets
A talk about strange things
Is light misleading, misleading

Now the time is passing over my head
My senses are set free, but

Will you cry when I die
Shall I cry when you die
Who said why

So let me tell you now goodbye
I say a bee is happy in its hive

I swear I tried to run by your side
But turn out the light
I swear I tried to run by your side
But turn on the night, who said why

Remember the rules
Of our different games
We painted out teeth
And changed our names
Then you bursted into tears
Watching birds dissected
Is light misleading, misleading

Now the ice, freezing under my skin
My motions are getting harder
But now

Will you cry when I die
Shall I cry when you die
Who said why

So let me tell you now goodbye
I say a bee is happy in its hive

I swear I tried to run by your side
But turn out the light
I swear I tried to run by your side
But turn on the night, who said why

I swear I tried to run by your side
But turn out the light
I swear I tried to run by your side
But turn on the night, who said why
